Market Commentary

As of June 2026, the Los Angeles, CA market continues to demonstrate resilience. The median sale price of $303,000 reflects a year-over-year change of -0.9%, while properties are spending an average of 23 days on market. Demand continues to outpace supply. With only 1.2 months of supply, sellers hold significant leverage. The average home sold for 1.9% above list price, signalling that multiple-offer situations remain common. New building permit activity in the area suggests steady long-term demand, and school quality ratings remain a key driver of price premiums in this zip code. For sellers, now is a strong window to price competitively and leverage Snaphomz's AI-assisted staging tools.
